

Four Strategies to Mitigate Implicit Bias

January 21, 2026

4:30-6:00pm VIRTUAL

Open to all school staff in the WREN region. School staff includes teachers, principals, counselors, other licensed staff, EAs/IAs, and others who provide support for schools and youth.

ATTENTION PLEASE

Due to new expenditure guidelines from the state, the WREN is no longer able to provide stipends to educators solely for attending professional development. Consequently, you will not receive a stipend for attending this professional learning opportunity. However, we have covered all training fees to ensure high-quality professional learning remains free for educators in the region.

About the PD

Everyone holds implicit biases. That doesn't make us "bad people," it just means that we have work to do.

This 90-minute training will explore what implicit bias is, how it develops, its impact in society, and how to reduce biases you hold. During the session we will unpack the brain science behind implicit bias, how it is learned, and the role it plays in all aspects of life. We will explore Right To Be's four strategies to mitigate implicit bias and learn how we can incorporate them into our everyday life.

This training is interactive. Be prepared to engage in activities where we reflect on how implicit bias shows up in our thoughts and actions. Leaving this training, you will have actionable steps and strategies to take with you to continue the work of mitigating your implicit bias.

RIGHT TO BE

EDUCATOR
ADVANCEMENT
COUNCIL

REGISTER BY JANUARY 7TH!

Registration does not guarantee a spot in the class. Participants will be notified of their placement by January 14th.